Waiting To See

The work of the Social Credit Board, it is explained, calls for a report of such magnitude or complexity that the legislature is not likely to see it for some days. Meantime, the customary procedure has been reversed, and the Board voted $100,000 to spend this year before it has accounted for the $500,000 voted for it last year.

That is a tribute of confidence in the Board from the majority members, in which the Opposition members obviously do not join. Some of these have unkindly suggested that the delay in composing the document is because there is not much to report; arguing on the general principle that a man who has much to say frequently takes a long time saying it. By which general proposition, it has to be admitted, the records of the present and past legislatures afford a good deal of proof.

Aside from voting money to pay interest on the provincial debt, the legislature had not much left on the agenda when it adjourned over the week-end. The interest bill comes under the heading of "fixed" charges, the Board's report was the only known item remaining on which a lengthy debate appeared probable. Almost it could be said the legislature is marking time waiting for the Board to complete its statement. It is to be supposed it will continue to do so until the report is tabled, and then take all necessary time to give the thorough analysis and discussion called for by the extensive duties referred to the Board.

As the job of implementing the Social Credit promises has been turned over to that body, the public will expect to be fully informed by the discussion as to what steps have been taken to that end, and what progress has been made toward distribution of the dividends.

Our State Of Disharmony

Mr. Bennett is deeply concerned over the disharmony at present existing between the provinces and the Dominion. He has cause to be. And to tinge his concern with regret that he did not foresee and forestall the "disharmony."

There was little disharmony between the provinces and the Dominion when Mr. Bennett went into office. There was little else when he left, and the friction was fast growing into active and widespread discord.

In part that was Mr. Bennett's misfortune, for the depression must in any case have subjected the confederation structure to stresses and strains unknown in good times. But in part the cleavage was due to the mistaken policies by which he intensified the severity of the depression and the toll of the separatist forces this set in play.

Had Canada followed Britain's policy in departing from gold, adopted a policy of controlled inflation as Australia did, lowered the barriers against external trade instead of raising them, undertaken a refunding of the federal and provincial debts, and set ten boards instead of one at the task of private debt adjustment, the fury of deflation would have been stayed, discontent would not have reached the point of exasperation, and there would have been less occasion for the cultivation and growth of provincial-Dominion antagonism.

There is nothing in The Alberta Act of 1905 to require the province to provide and maintain a residence for the Lieutenant-Governor. That has been done, from the beginning, but always at the pleasure of the legislature—though sometimes "pleasure" has been less in evidence than permissiveness as to what was due to the gubernatorial mansion.

Anybody Want A House?

The practice was started here partly because it was common among the provinces, and partly also because a governor could a considerable amount of large-scale contracting for which the ordinary private residence is ill adapted. Unless the province was to foot the bill for this entertaining, none but a wealthy man could afford to accept appointment to the place, and only a wealthy man who chose to maintain a castle at his own expense. A Government House was provided and maintained as the most satisfactory arrangement, quarters being rented until the present half million dollar official residence was built.

Many years ago a Calgary member succeeded in getting a resolution through the legislature calling for the closing of the establishment. As the Government of the day could not see how the building could be utilized, the resolution was not implemented.

Government House has therefore survived, on sufferance. The legislature has now decided to devote it to "some other purpose," leaving the Lieutenant-Governor to provide himself with a home on such scale as his means and taste may decide, and the official entertaining to go unperformed unless the legislature chooses to pay hotel bills for its guests or supply quarters elsewhere.

Naturally there is a good deal of wondering, and some anxiety, as to what the "other purpose" may be. The Ponoka hospital is over-crowded, and another jail will have to be established in the reasonably near future. But the building is not well designed or situated for either purpose. And the surrounding district has become one of the show places of the city, by the erection of beautiful and costly private residences; a circumstance that can hardly be overlooked.

For the time being it looks as though the legislature has a Casa Loma on hand.

The legislature learned that the Ponoka mental hospital is over-crowded and 200 patients are to be moved to Oliver. In varying degrees, over-crowding of similar institutions is common all over the continent. Not that the percentage who are afflicted mentally is growing, but because hospitals are now provided where the afflicted are treated. In former times there were only "mad houses," where those who were hopelessly and violently insane were confined for the safety and convenience of the public.

A Reactionary Measure

Those in Canada who cherish the freedom of speech, writing, and public meeting guaranteed by the Constitution are much concerned at the "Padlock Act" recently passed in Quebec. The measure has no parallel in the British Dominion. One clause declares it to be illegal for any house to be used to "propagate communism or bolshevism by any means whatsoever," though it is to be noted that in no part of the Act is any attempt made to define these pernicious doctrines. . . . Among elementary principles of British constitutional government are freedom of speech, of the press, and of public meeting, subject to the limitations of the criminal law; the right of a man to a fair trial in open court if charged with an offence; and the freedom of the home from arbitrary search. All of these are violated by the new Act, and the anxiety of liberal opinion throughout Canada at the reactionary nature of this measure can well be understood. —Marjorie Guardian.

A "Dead Horse"

To say that a law is a "dead horse" is to state clearly that it is no longer exists or that it has no validity. Right Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, used these two words to characterize the concession law against which he was one of the first to vote in 1917. The law of obligatory military service was valid only for the duration of the war of 1914. In 1922 Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, then Speaker of the House, had declared that fact to the present leader of the C.C.F. The members who are now demanding the abrogation of the law are playing the dead horse over the carcass of the "dead horse." . . . Furthermore, it seems that the French-Canadians of Quebec and of the East of Canada long ago got the message. The candidate in a Federal election among us who attempts to work up the people, whether by force or by fraud, to support a law which is a possible ramp to the "dead horse" will get him self laughed at and lose his deposit. —Le Canada, Montreal.

The Open Door

Ever since the days of John Hay, the "Open Door" has been the world policy towards China. The great powers set themselves to achieve an equality of trading rights in the Chinese empire. Special privileges to one nation or another were to be abolished; and this, apart from certain extraterritorial privileges which had been established. It was natural therefore, when Japan began her continental campaign that the Japanese should aver that she aims also to maintain the open door, that is to say the Asiatic mainland merely that of policeman, to assure to every one conditions of security for trading purposes.

Japan is prepared to respect to the fullest extent foreign rights and interests, and will maintain the policy of the open door for the purpose of promoting the welfare of the Chinese people. This statement should be examined in the light of the facts. A similar policy was expressed in 1901 when Manchuria was seized, and it is remembered that powerful interests in England applauded and excused Japan's action at that time as a guarantee of the open door. The facts are that the percentage of trade in Manchuria done by Japan has risen from 38 per cent in 1927 to 73 per cent in 1931. The percentage done by Great Britain in the same period has fallen from three per cent to one per cent. The percentage done by the United States has dropped from six to three per cent. All other countries which, in 1927, had 53 per cent of the business, now have only 22 per cent.

Detailed examination of the figures show that the amount of trade done by the Japanese was greater in 1936 than in any year since 1929, which indicates that either order has been restored there or Japan, or that Japan is getting a return on it. Beginning in 1931, the curve of Japan's share has risen year by year, and the curve of the other countries has gone steadily down. There is no reason to believe that the trend will not continue. There is also evidence to show that in the occupied areas of China, the Japanese are pursuing the same tactics as those employed in Manchuria. Japanese goods are getting preference over those of other countries. All other goods and the treaty rights of other trading powers are being flouted and ignored. The Japanese policy of the "Open Door" is to open it wide enough to let everything else go, and to let the Japanese in—Winnipeg Free Press.

The "Unity" Movement

Progressive conservatism among the political parties now out of office and seeking to get into it seems to be making as good progress in Saskatchewan as it is in Alberta. Indeed, it is even Alberta and the other provinces, both of which are all the "outs" cannot become "ins" at the same time.

Mr. Williams has been talking about "unity" and has given the impression that he is agreeable to it so long as his party is the one leading the movement and therefore the "ins" after the election. He said the C.C.F. would not be asked to join a coalition with the Conservatives to form a Government if elected.

Now, Mr. Diefenbaker, Conservative leader, says something very much the same. His party, the Progressive Conservatives, would not join a Government if elected and, of course, if they succeed then they will be the "ins."

No doubt the Social Crediters, or monetary reformers, or the "progressive" Conservatives, as far as can be recalled, no one has yet said very much about it. And if the Communists and Fascists could nominate enough to form a Government that will sweep the state of "ins" and "outs" to form a Government each will have to have at least 25 successful candidates and there are only 50 seats in the House of Commons.

It is difficult to imagine any one of the three major "out" parties being so modest as to limit nominations to merely enough to form a Government. That would be taking too great a chance.

Incidentally, Mr. Diefenbaker gave some advice to the "progressive" Conservatives that should be "give and take" among them. The "take" part of the advice was unnecessary and the "give" part might be initiated by Mr. Diefenbaker.

Perhaps Mr. Diefenbaker was not giving advice to his own organization, however, indeed, probably he was not, because he referred specifically to the "progressive" Conservatives.

Your Health

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

In yesterday's article I explained to you some of the causes of excessive gas and in today's article I will explain why it is that an improper balance of the digestive juices will also produce gas. The digestive juices of the stomach should contain certain elements which will be properly balanced and in correct proportion to each other in the healthy person living on a good diet. If too much of certain kinds of food are eaten, the stomach tries to save the individual's life by changing the digestive juices to meet the imposed requirements.

For example, when an excess of meat is taken each day, the gastric juice will gradually become more acid. If too many carbohydrates are used, this may result in too much bile being formed; when both too much meat and too much starch are used, there will be an excess of both hydrochloric acid and bile. This change away from the normal is one of the most common causes of flatulence.

Most patients get into the habit of swallowing air with their food, or at the same time that they try to belch. I have examined many of these patients under the fluoroscope and I could see them actually swallowing bubbles of air which soon filled the top of the stomach. However, this habit can be corrected and the distress then disappears.

Inflammation or irritation of the stomach is often sufficient to produce flatulence even when one is not eating. Patients who correct their diet by actually swallowing bubbles of air which soon filled the top of the stomach. However, this habit can be corrected and the distress then disappears.

A patient using a smaller amount of food than usual, will often be surprised to note that he has more trouble with flatulence than before. Most patients are not aware that the stomach needs a small amount of food does not entirely use up or absorb the digestive juices and the result is that gas is formed when the excessively acid fluid comes in contact with the food. The stomach's digestive tube where it will mix with alkaline juices.

Any condition which stimulates the excessive formation of digestive ferments will tend to cause gas, even when the food is carefully selected and combined. Onions, garlic, broiled cattle and broiled chicken can be avoided by the patient with a tendency to flatulence because they produce added discomfort due to their chemical composition.

In my experience, I have found that excessive gas may be overcome, provided the patient is willing to adopt those good habits which will improve his digestion and correct the underlying causes of the excessive gas. I find that some form of the fasting treatment is clearly indicated as the fast will give the digestive tract something of a rest and will at the same time, have the effect of cleaning it out. The digestive juices, which are normally active, will be improved, and will adjust themselves to the new fast completely, will have returned to the normal proportion to each other. After the fast the patient will find that the tendency toward the forming of excessive gas.

Those wishing further information are welcome to write for my three articles on Excessive Gas which will be sent to any reader who forwards the enclosed, stamped and addressed envelope. These articles will outline an excellent dietetic regimen for you to follow during the time you are attempting to correct your excessive gas. The diet is not too strict, and the results are most satisfying.

Today is the hundredth anniversary of two events which had marked results upon the future of Canada: (1) The Earl of Durham was appointed governor-general and high commissioner; (2) Samuel Lount and Peter Matthews were found guilty at Toronto of sedition and were condemned to death.

Durham did not wait the task of attempting to bring peace to the Canadas. He refused it more than once, and considered only as the personal request of his young Queen, Victoria, for whom he had successfully carried out a diplomatic mission to the czar of the Russian Empire.

He made it a point of duty to defend the rights of the people as a whole, and as a result of his efforts, he was able to bring peace to the Canadas. He refused it more than once, and considered only as the personal request of his young Queen, Victoria, for whom he had successfully carried out a diplomatic mission to the czar of the Russian Empire.

would enable the home market for agricultural products through the industrial employment provided and it would greatly benefit the taxation base of the province.

The Chamber therefore submitted that there should be undertaken at the earliest possible date a complete and comprehensive examination of the nature and incidence of railway freight rate structure of Canada to effect such revision as will make it bear more equitably upon the various geographical divisions of the Dominion.

Excess of interest rates in Alberta and those in other provinces constituted another difficulty to this province, the chamber claimed. This applied to public and private debt and the excess involved an added cost variously estimated from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 annually.

TOO EASY CREDIT

The chamber recognized frankly and appreciatively the contribution made by the easy credit made in the building up of Alberta, but believed that this province has suffered from too easy credit more than from difficulty in obtaining credit. For this same responsibility rests upon the lender, although the major responsibility is that of the borrower.

There was too little checking of the purpose to which borrowed money was to be put and too great willingness to assume an added risk in return for excessive interest rates. It was believed that this province has suffered from too easy credit more than from difficulty in obtaining credit. ## GROWTH OF TAXATION

The burden of provincial taxation has been mounting steadily since the first time a provincial tax was levied in Alberta. The province's revenue in 1906 was $1,750,000, while in 1936 it was $10,000,000. The increase of 570 per cent is reflected in the following table:

Year	Revenue	% Increase
1911	$2,750,000	57.14
1916	$3,750,000	57.14
1921	$4,750,000	57.14
1926	$5,750,000	57.14
1931	$6,750,000	57.14

able the provinces to finance their limited expenditures, which usually require to meet the heavy financial responsibilities now imposed upon the provinces. Alberta's subsidies now amount for approximately 10 per cent of the province's total revenues. The cumulative increase of expenditure has resulted in a 50 per cent increase in the cost of services in the Dominion. There was too little checking of the purpose to which borrowed money was to be put and too great willingness to assume an added risk in return for excessive interest rates. It was believed that this province has suffered from too easy credit more than from difficulty in obtaining credit. For this same responsibility rests upon the lender, although the major responsibility is that of the borrower.

REQUESTS FOR SEED IN EAST ARE REFUSED

OTTAWA, March 28.—The Dominion rejected requests from Quebec, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island and Ontario for assistance in obtaining seed this spring. It was disclosed Monday in the House of Commons by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture.

Alberta and Saskatchewan and Alberta which had been ravaged in part by drought, the Dominion decided, neither the municipalities nor the provincial governments in the four provinces were incapable of handling seed and requirements.

ONLY WHEN UNABLE

The Dominion, Mr. Gardiner stated, took the view that when municipalities were unable to provide seed and where the provinces were unable to carry the financial load, only then did it become a national responsibility. The Dominion did not enter the picture in provinces financially able to distribute seed either with or without the co-operation of municipalities.

The minister made his statement while the house was considering the bill guaranteeing $150,000,000 for Saskatchewan and $100,000,000 for Alberta seed distribution loans.

THIRD READING

The bill was given second reading in committee stage and given third reading during the day-long discussion.

PROVINCIAL AID

Mr. J. G. Gardiner, minister of agriculture, said that in 1908, when the province was cut in half, providing the reduced rate did not follow 2½ per cent. The province's revenue in 1906 was $1,750,000, while in 1936 it was $10,000,000. The increase of 570 per cent is reflected in the following table:

Excess of interest rates in Alberta and those in other provinces constituted another difficulty to this province, the chamber claimed. This applied to public and private debt and the excess involved an added cost variously estimated from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 annually.

TOO EASY CREDIT

The chamber recognized frankly and appreciatively the contribution made by the easy credit made in the building up of Alberta, but believed that this province has suffered from too easy credit more than from difficulty in obtaining credit. For this same responsibility rests upon the lender, although the major responsibility is that of the borrower.

Objections Of Churches To Sweepstakes Decried

TORONTO, March 28.—Until now members are present, Ontario legislators Monday decided to defer action on a resolution asking provincial legislatures to give authority to legalise operation of sweepstakes for the purpose of raising funds for church organizations to buy tickets on raffles, and Mr. Hepburn described clerical opposition to the move as "hypocritical."

Talk Confidence

OTTAWA, March 28.—The confidence of the Social Crediters will be discussed in the House of Commons today when the government moves to go into supply.

Cow Has Triplets

BELLEVILLE, Ont. March 28.—A cow at the farm of E. E. Caines of Hinton, near Brighton, has born to one of the cows. The three little Jersey calves are all doing well.

Looking Them Over

Rare Chance Grad Power Fighters Prep

FOR the first time Edmonton hockey fans will get a chance to see just what college of senior hockey is played in Manitoba and the Thunder Bay region when the Port Arthur Bearcats and Red Lake Thunderers tonight tangle at the arena in the second game of their best of three series for entry in the western Allan Cup final. One of three clubs will fight it out with the Flin Flon or Trail for a crack at the Dominion title and Edmonton fans are hot to see just what a team has to have to reach these coveted playground slats.

Contention has been here this season as to just how our brand of senior hockey compares with that in other parts of Canada. One side has maintained that it is good average hockey, while the other side has declared that it wasn't even worthy of senior classification. Tonight should add some worthwhile facts to the argument.

Commenting on Saturday's game in Calgary between Port Arthur and Red Lake, Harry Good, sport editor of the Edmonton Journal, declared that both clubs showed real class and advised Edmonton fans that the game here should be something well worth seeing. He figures it will be a wide open contest in which anything can happen.

These teams must have something, there is no denying that. Port Arthur is coached by that veteran, "Pete" Wilson and Phil has his hockey from goal post to power play. They always have tough clubs around Thunder Bay and this year Earl Williams Wanderers were figured the outfit to beat. The Port Arthur Bearcats did just that. This feat alone is ample indication that the Bears have power.

The most important fact is that Red Lake had the better of Saturday night's game for 25 minutes and were beaten out only by a sensational Bearcat rally that saw Calgarini's skill a threat. That can only mean that Red Lake, too, has what it takes to get along the playoff trail.

While audience recollections for tonight's game have not been as heavy as they were for the recent, junior game, the ticket demand is back enough this morning. Chance seats are dropping fast and one tip to get your ducks now and again may pay.

Grad Scoring Power

THE Grads have set more than one world mark in women's basketball. In the series with Victoria, not only did they average 70 points a game, but they also scored 100 points in a single game. In the two games against the coast guards, the Grads' scoring average per game was exactly 60. So far, it can be said, no other team has ever reached approximately that scoring perfection.

Any club that wants to dominate the Grads is also to develop a higher accuracy percentage, while maintaining an equally strong defense. To do that, each member of the team must find a season-long plan of attack, practice day in and day out. A basketball field never comes in her hand than a lightning. Coach Phil Page is the only man who can make girls want to do that, so the Grad dynasty seems perfectly safe.

Demaray and Loftus Prep

ALF Loftus, building at the Osborne Gym in the basement of the training grounds, are bringing Dick Demaray of Blainville, N.W. Dakota, and Johnny Loftus of Edmonton into the pink for their blossoming careers. Demaray is the fight club for the Memorial Hall on August 10, and Loftus is the fight club for the Memorial Hall on August 10. Demaray has been working each afternoon with George Brucka, who is working with Demaray and who is now back in training. Loftus has been working with Demaray and who is now back in training. Loftus has been working with Demaray and who is now back in training.

Loftus, this battle will be the biggest chance he has had in a number of years to show his stuff. Demaray is a fighter who has taken him up against the best in the west and some battles at Leonard Bennett down the U.S. Pacific coast. He knows what it is all about. What is more, he has sparred a lot with both Demaray and Loftus and he is confident that he knows how to tie up the Demaray, devastating left so that it will do him no harm. Johnny may have some thing there at that. If he has, this coming fight is going to be something to be remembered for a long time.

Curling Dinner

COMPLETES BIG YEAR OF GAINS

Beaton and stanes were entombed for another season last night when the association of the Alberta Curling Association marked the passing of the 1937-38 season with a dinner and a meeting held in the King Edward.

Reports and reviews of the season's activities were read and the most successful of the season's books of the season's. The association's annual dinner and meeting was a success and the association's annual dinner and meeting was a success.

Progress was made in developing inter-club visits and competitions both in the city and in the surrounding districts. The association's annual dinner and meeting was a success and the association's annual dinner and meeting was a success.

Defeat Victorias By Margin of 78-19 In Second Battle

Lift Western Senior Championship by Total Point Margin of 105—MacDonald, Northup and Daniel Leading Scorers

By JACK KELLY

TODAY the Edmonton Grads are the proud holders of their eighteenth consecutive western Canada senior girls' basketball championship.

They added that honor to their spoils of the court here last night when they defeated Victoria, 78-19, in the second game of a total-point series. The Grads won the first game Saturday night by 80-34. This gives the Grads a total point margin of 105 points.

Victoria's hopes that it might have a much finer performance against the world champions in the second game of the series were shattered when the Grads maintained their phenomenal scoring average of 45 per cent and at the same time maintained such a rigid defense that their opponents were handicapped.

NOEL AGAIN TOPS

Captain Noel MacDonald again set a brilliant scoring pace for the Grads when she piled up a total of 24 points last night. Twelve field baskets out of 20 attempts made up her total. Helen Northup, who scored 10 points, and Mabel Munton, who scored 8 points, were the other two leading scorers.
